

Volunteers Pass Mutual Aid Plan For County Fires

Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association Adopts Coverage Program Devised Recently to Provide Greater Rural Protection—Essay Contest Will Be Presented to School Children

Minor Changes

County Attorney Elsworth Tells Association It Must Pay Own Telephone Calls

The mutual aid and coverage plan which was approved by the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association at the August meeting held in Kingston, was unanimously adopted Tuesday evening at the monthly meeting of the association held in Spinnaker's Broadway in Port Ewen, when the association was the guest of the Hasbrouck Engine Co. of Connelly.

The association also decided to sponsor an essay contest on the subject of fire prevention in the home, which would be confined to the pupils of the 7th and 8th grades in the schools of Ulster county.

The association accepted the invitation of Highland Hose Company, No. 1, to meet in Highland in October.

Mutual Aid Plan

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy of Kingston, chairman of the committee which has been working for over a year on the mutual aid and coverage plan, submitted his final report at the meeting last night. The chief said that the plan, which had been approved at the August meeting, had undergone some minor changes made at a meeting of the chiefs of the various fire departments of Ulster county held with the committee.

The plan, which has been described at length in brief calls for better fire protection throughout the county. In case of fire breaks out in a department cannot handle, under the plan as adopted will send in a telephone call for assistance to the central station, which is to be located in Kingston. The man who answers the telephone call will then arrange to have another department, as listed in the printed schedule respond, and while that department is responding another fire department will stand by in case a fire should suddenly break out in the territory left vacant by the fire department responding to the appeal for assistance.

The only question was as to who would pay for the telephone calls.

County Attorney Roscoe Elsworth, who is a member of the law committee of the association, said he had already advised the board of supervisors could pay legally. He said that the logical place for the telephone was the Central Fire Station in Kingston and that the cost of the toll calls could be borne by the county association. He said that the total cost would not be large, and urged that the plan be adopted for at least a year. The toll calls that the association would pay would be the outgoing calls. Any fire department telephoning in for assistance would pay for that phone call.

Essay Contest

Attention was called to the fact that Fire Prevention Week is October 8 to 15. Fire Chief Murphy said that last year the association sponsored an essay contest among the school children, and suggested that it again do so, limiting the contest to pupils of the 7th and 8th grades in the schools of the county.

The fire chief's suggestion was unanimously adopted. The essay subject will be Fire Prevention in the Home and not over 150 words must be written. Each essay must be written in ink with the name of the student and school at the top of the sheet.

The closing date will be October 15, and all essays must be mailed to Francis J. Wynne, secretary of the association, at his home, 44 Lafayette avenue, Kingston.

The prizes will be $5, $3, and $1 for the three best essays which will be judged by disinterested persons.

A Wild Convention
Judging from the word picture drawn by Ben Litchford, former president of the county association, who represented the county firemen at the state firemen's convention in Saratoga Lake in August, it was a wild convention. His opinion was corroborated by Port Ewen, who also attended. Mr. Litchford said that if any association decided to entertain a convention it would be a wise move not to try to enforce quiet on the delegates. The mayor of

Group Will Meet Tonight to Plan Huge Celebration

MORRIS SAMTER

Plans will be made this evening at 7:30 o'clock for the mammoth celebration to mark the opening of the new concrete highway at Highland; the Kingston-West Hurley road and the new street lighting in the city of Kingston at a meeting of the celebration committee, recently appointed by Mayor C. J. Heiselein.

Morris Samter, general chairman of the committee, has sent out notices to each of the members to meet in the court room at the city hall this evening when preliminary plans will be made.

The principal feature of the celebration will be the parade in which all of the city's motorized equipment will take part, industrial and business houses will be urged to have floats in the line of march, as well as private automobiles. The parade will form in Kingston and proceed over the new four-strip road to West Hurley, returning to Kingston, passing down Broadway to the Rondout Creek Bridge and thence over 9-W to Highland, returning to Kingston when exercises will be held in the municipal auditorium.

Captain Brandt of the state highway department, James S. Bixby, division engineer in charge of this district, other state highway officials; the street lighting experts of the General Electric Company of Schenectady, who designed the new street lighting system in Kingston, and city and county officials will attend the exercises and participate in the celebration.

It is expected that the celebration will be bigger and better than the celebration held several years ago when the Kingston-New Paltz highway was opened.

The date fixed for the celebration is Thursday, October 6, and it will also be designated as Municipal Day in Kingston when all of the public buildings will be thrown open for inspection.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy will be the marshal in charge of the parade, and it is hoped that all of the business interests in Kingston as well as those sections through which the new roads pass will participate in the parade.

Mayor C. J. Heiselein has been planning for the celebration for some time and in naming the celebration committee he arranged to name not only prominent men of the city, but also of the villages and towns through which the roads pass.

Beverage Tax Collections

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 21 (AP)—The collection of $2,389,964.42 in state alcoholic beverage tax revenue for July was reported today, an increase of $248,664.65 over the same month in 1937. State Tax Commissioner Mark Graves said the tax receipts reflected a 46 per cent advance in sales of cider, the highest increase among beverages covered by the levy.

More Than $1,000,000

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—The New York Regional Social Security Board has paid out more than $1,000,000 to workers reaching the age of 65 or to the estates of those who died. Mrs. Anna N. Rosenberg, director, announced today. Approximately $155,000 monthly, an average of $65.57 per claimant in August, has been given in cash payments.

Rosendale Group Counts 50,000 Folk Spending $500,000

Estimates Prepared for State Department Show Neighboring Township Has Boom Resort Trade

Estimates prepared for the New York State Publicity Department, read at a meeting of the Rosendale Township Association last night showed that the sustained drive of the group for a bigger and better resort area has brought most encouraging results.

Figures compiled by the group showed that 50,000 people visited the township resorts during the season just ended, and it was estimated conservatively that the visitors spent $500,000 while in the locality.

This business, the report disclosed, represents a 12 per cent increase over that of last year and it was also reported that travel to the township was increased noticeably.

The association learned from a representative of the Van Gonsle bus lines, that it transported over 1,000 people to resorts in the area over the Labor Day weekend.

The bus company figures showed also its highest percentage of increase on the route, in travel to Rosendale and vicinity. Travel to the township also was noticeably greater among those who came in private cars and other conveyances.

Joseph O'Connor, head of the social and recreational program, inaugurated by the association for the first time this year, reported that the idea was one of the most successful attempted by the group. Guests at the various resorts were taken on tours and various types of outings under the guidance of Mr. O'Connor and members of the association. They enjoyed scheduled hayrides, automobile tours, picnics, swimming and hiking parties and many other events.

This venture was so successful, Mr. O'Connor reported, that many of those who visited the resorts have written him since to thank him for the enjoyable times and expressing themselves as most favorably impressed with the township of Rosendale as a vacation center.

Recent Rains Fail To Place Ashokan At Overflow Stage

Although the Ashokan reservoir has been replenished to the extent of 2,500,000,000 gallons since the rainfall began last Saturday it still is 7,000,000,000 gallons short of being full. Since the rain began the Ashokan and Glibbo reservoirs have gained 3,100,000,000 gallons but the two large reservoirs still can hold a total of 12,000,000,000 gallons before they will be filled.

While the rainstorm has kept up almost continuously since Saturday night the City of New York gauges at Brown Station show a total of 5.28 inches since the rainstorm began. For September the total rainfall at Brown Station has been 6.58 inches and the total rainfall for the year at that station has been 44.33 inches which is about five inches above the average rainfall but not near a record. The record annual rainfall in the Brown Station area was 44.9 inches. For the year to date the rainfall recorded at Prattville has been 34.55 inches, which is about two inches above the average.

A strange thing, but one which has prevailed for several years past is the fact that rainfall at Brown Station has been in excess of that at Prattville, where gauges are maintained at the Glibbo reservoir site.

At Prattville 2.99 inches of rain has been reported since the present storm broke and the total rainfall for September up to today was 4.49 inches. For the year to date the rainfall recorded at Prattville has been 34.55 inches, which is about two inches above the average.

Ulster-Wide Cooperation Is Sought To Preserve Rifton Covered Bridge

Perrine's Bridge: 1850

A move started last night by the Rosendale Township Association at one of its scheduled meetings is expected to result in preservation of Perrine's bridge, one of the old and picturesque landmarks of the county at Rifton, as an historic point of interest.

The association voted to appoint E. M. Huben, E. P. Demarest and Walter Williams as a committee to confer with the Ulster County Historical Society, the Huguenot Society of New Paltz, and other groups including town and county officials on securing proper action in support of the proposal.

Verbal sanction to the idea already has been given by Supervisors Raymond Howe of Esopus and Charles Thielman of Rosendale, members of the group reported.

O'Connor Loses to Fay and Is F.D.R.'s First Purge Victim

New York City Democrat Wins Republican Designation in Yesterday's Primary in 16th District

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—Rep. John J. O'Connor, chairman of the powerful House rules committee, became the first victim of President Roosevelt's purge when he lost his fight for renomination by the Democratic party, although he won the Republican designation.

Endorsed by the President, James H. Fay, former Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, reversed the verdict of 1934 to defeat O'Connor by 553 votes in New York's gilt-and-grime 16th district.

Fay's victory in the Democratic primary yesterday and O'Connor's defeat of Allen W. Dulles, regular organization designee for the Republican nomination, assured a repetition of their contest in the November election. Four years ago O'Connor defeated Fay in the primary by a narrow margin.

O'Connor's defeat gave Mr. Roosevelt his first party "purge" victory after reversals in senate races in South Carolina, Maryland and Georgia.

The only one of eight Democratic incumbents in New York city contests to lose his party's nomination O'Connor indicated he

Primaries at a Glance

(By The Associated Press)
New York—Rep. John J. O'Connor, opposed by President Roosevelt, loses Democratic nomination to James H. Fay, New Dealer, but wins in Republican primary.

Massachusetts—Complete unofficial returns from Massachusetts, 1,762 precincts in yesterday's Democratic gubernatorial primary gave Governor Charles F. Hurley, 187,986; James M. Curley, 210,115; Francis E. Kelly, 101,850; Richard M. Russell, 31,160. For the Republican gubernatorial nomination 1,762 precincts gave: Frederick Butler, 27,410; William McManis, 47,994; Everett Saltonstall, 32,534; Richard Whitcomb, 45,123.

New Jersey—Former Senator W. Warren Barbour easily wins Republican Senatorial nomination, William H. J. Ely unopposed for Democratic nomination.

Wisconsin—Gov. Philip La Follette wins renomination for fourth term, Robert K. Henry, Fusionist, leads for Democratic gubernatorial nomination but trails Julius P. Hall on Republican slate; Senator F. Ryan Duffy unopposed for Democratic renomination; Herman L. Ekern, Progressive, and Alexander Wiley, Republican, lead in Senatorial races.

The quaint, covered wooden structure which spans the Wallkill river on the route from Tilton to Rifton, was built in 1850 and is one of the few structures of its type remaining in the Catskill mountain and Hudson valley region.

Members of the association spoke on the fact that the bridge long had attracted tourists as a point of interest in the county and it was pointed out that it will continue to be of even greater interest in that so many similar structures have been demolished and replaced by bridges of modern construction.

Great Attraction
Artists and engineers have been attracted to the site to inspect its crude but attractive structural details, one member stated, and it has been reproduced in various media as a work of art.

Similar structures in New England, it was learned, have been preserved as historic monuments and one such bridge has been converted into a museum.

It is the hope of the association to see that the bridge is protected and that it will be preserved properly as a landmark for posterity.

Dewey to Get New Judge

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—A different judge—at District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's request—will preside at the second trial of Tammany District Leader James J. Hines on charges he sold political protection to the policy racket of the late Dutch Schultz. Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand E. Pecora, who declared a mistrial in the case September 12 after four weeks of testimony, transferred the trial yesterday to the Court of General Sessions.

ALP May Not Have Candidates for 3 Principal Offices

Unofficial Tabulation Shows Possible Tie for Congressman, State Senator, and Assembly Post

An unofficial tabulation of results of yesterday's local primary indicated today that the American Labor Party may not have candidates for Congressman, State Senator and Assemblyman, although other members of the Republican party have been designated as the choice of the labor group.

Results of a ballot returned late today showed a possible tie for the three major positions on the ticket for the fall election.

In the event that there is a tie, it was stated by a prominent Republican official this afternoon, the candidates who received the same amount of votes both on the Republican and Labor Party tickets, will be allowed to run only on the one ticket, which will be the Republican ticket on which they were first unofficially designated.

While the vote was close returns from all but three districts indicated that the Republican county candidates had received the endorsement of the American Labor party and would go on the ballot at the general election as that party's choice. Incomplete returns showed that George W. Markey, American Labor party candidate for Congress, was leading Lewis K. Rockefeller, Republican by a vote. Maurice J. Sullivan, the party's regular choice, was leading Senator Arthur H. Weeks for state senator by a single vote, and Jacob J. Schneider was leading J. Edward Conway by one vote for the American Labor party choice for member of Assembly. In all three of these offices there were votes still to be tabulated which may change the result one way or another.

All county officials on the Republican ticket apparently have won out over the candidates whose names appeared on the American Labor party ticket on primary day and in each instance the lead apparently cannot be overcome by the few votes still to be recorded.

With three districts to be heard from Harry H. Fleming, Republican, was leading Chris J. Flanagan in the Surrogate race 18 to 13 for the American Labor party choice. Sheriff Abram F. Molyneux was leading John C. Shultz 19 to 15. Robert I. Park was leading Mary L. O'Connor for Commissioner of Public Welfare 15 to 11 for the designation and Howard B. Humiston was leading Orrin M. Roberts 19 to 14.

A second write-in campaign which did not produce much results was a campaign conducted in the Democratic party for the designation state committeeman. On the official primary ballot the names of Bernard A. Culliton and Joan Goldrick, recognized candidates, were not printed because of a failure of the party to notify the board of elections of that vacancy in time to have the names appear on the ballots. County Chairman Culliton later learned of this failure and a campaign to write in his name and that of Joan Goldrick was started. Manuel Dittenheimer of Ellenville also learned of the fact and started a campaign to have his name written in. A check-up of the Democratic vote cast disclosed that Dittenheimer received but a few scattered votes and Culliton and Joan Goldrick unquestionably are named.

The vote was light in most districts.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—The position of the Treasury September 19: Receipts, $87,629,430.60; expenditures, $50,377,922.23; net balance, $3,083,572,804.30, including $2,484,054,446.98 working balance, customs receipts for the month, $17,860,138.02; receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $1,352,250,894.95; expenditures, $1,379,436,844.62, including $600,646,042.37 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $627,150,949.57; gross debt, $33,394,075,780.90, a decrease of $4,211,701.22 below the previous day; gold assets, $13,535,994,652.65.

Pine Camp Maneuvers

Pine Camp, N. Y., Sept. 21 (AP)—Regular U. S. Army troops "invading" northern New York, moved today to attack opposing troops guarding Watertown. The invading troops, Brig. Gen. Irving J. Phillipson's reinforced second brigade—contacted the enemy, impersonated by a dozen umpires, in maneuvers through ankle deep mud and heavily fogged country, yesterday. They rested overnight, then advanced today to engage the foe.

Leaves Only $1,000

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP)—An estate of only $1,000 was listed in Samuel Insull's will on file today in probate court. It was bequeathed to the widow of the man who once was the ruler of a far flung utilities empire with millions at his disposal. Insull died July 16 in Paris, France.

Pacific Train Wreck in Which Rhinebeck Woman Dies

Eleven persons were killed and 109 injured, some critically, in this collision of two Southern Pacific passenger trains near Niland, Calif. This airview shows six of the wrecked cars and the demolished locomotives, which struck head-on. Railroad officials said a mistake in throwing a switch

The list of dead in the train wreck near Niland, Calif., yesterday included Florence A. Tator of 60 Chester street, Rhinebeck, according to the Associated Press. Ten others were injured fatally when the fast west-bound Argonaut and the California came together near the small Mojave Desert town.

Officials of the Southern Pacific lines said after the wreck that an investigation fixed the blame on a brakeman who threw a switch. As many as 60 other passengers were injured and most of them were taken to hospitals at Yuma, Ariz., and Indio, Cal.

Both locomotives were overturned and the first three cars of the Argonaut and the first coach of the Californian were derailed. All of the passengers dead were in a Californian coach, which was telescoped by the terrific impact.

Basketball Prospects Are Encouraging, Says O'Brien

O'Connor Loses To James Fay

President John J. O'Brien of the American League at noon today said that "prospects for a team at Kingston look very encouraging."

"Kingston was represented at our league meeting last night," said President O'Brien, "and from what I could learn, Johnny Donlon, manager of the Brooklyn Visitation, and Jack Faye, manager of the services of his club, were not far apart on their propositions."

"The league looks with favor on the transfer," continued O'Brien, "from Brooklyn to Kingston because conditions at Prospect Hall were not looked upon by its officials with favor."

Jack Faye, Wall street restaurateur, made the trip to the league meeting in New York alone last night, and was unable to say yes to Donlon's agreement until he had conferred with his Kingston associates in the movement to bring pro basketball back to this city.

The others interested are Attorney N. LeVan Haver, Attorney Joseph Forman and Matthew Herzog, hardware dealer. These three and Faye took over for Frank Morgenweck last year, with Dave Bass as manager, when the Colonials needed aid and direction.

The next meeting of the league is scheduled for Friday night and Faye will go back ready to talk business with Donlon after a conference with his associates.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Securities Gain Following Lead Of World Markets

Securities on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday made the best average gain in some time, following the lead of world markets, which were strong as the belief prevailed that Czechoslovakia would be forced to accept the peace proposals laid down by Great Britain and France. The report that the Czech response had been unsatisfactory and that Britain and France had advised Prague that unless she complied she would be unsupported in case of invasion, was received long after all markets had closed. In London the market closed up 1.7 points in the Times financial averages for industrials. Gains up to six points were registered on the Berlin Boerse; Paris Bourse was strong and the Amsterdam market showed increased strength.

In New York, industrials were up 4 1/2 points, to 138.41 in the Dow-Jones averages; rails advanced 0.82, to 25.57, and utilities showed a gain of 0.74, to 18.70. Volume was 1,300,000 shares and $30,000,000. Bonds were higher.

Commodities, with the exception of wheat and sugar, were stronger. Wheat was 1/2 cent higher in Chicago and more in Winnipeg. There was heavy demand for cotton futures on mill accounts and there were advances of from 95 cents to $1.10 a bale. Rubber was up as much as 42 points.

In a conference held at the White House yesterday in which leading representatives of the railroads and labor participated, the President asked the cooperation of all management and labor in working out a legislative program for rehabilitation of the carriers, free from interference by other interests. He promised administration assistance in putting such a program through Congress.

The President has asked three rail labor heads and three railroad presidents to act as an informal committee in working out the program. The union leaders have refused to cooperate unless roads withdrew their demand for a 15 per cent wage cut.

Union Pacific's gross of $15, 108,440 in August was largest for that month since 1930. Net operating income for the month was $2,558,542, compared with $2,598,726 in the same month last year. Southern Pacific had loadings of 40,135 cars last week, largest for any week since that ending November 6 last year.

J. R. Davis, general sales manager for Ford Co., sees the outlook for the auto industry for the next two years as bright, predicts that 1939 will show a gain of 25 per cent over 1938. He believes that the return of the public into the market on a normal basis cannot much longer be postponed.

A four-room house, with bath and garage, modern in design and built to cost $3,000 in being planned by the building industry. The proposition was revealed by President Brown of the John-Manville Corporation, who said that virtually all details of the proposition had been worked out.

that the industry as a whole had been organized in support of the idea and that the program could be financed by private banking capital. The house could be paid for at the rate of $30 a month it was stated and according to Mr. Brown would be within the buying range of the man with an income of $1500 a year.

President Wood of Sears Roebuck & Co. believes that the danger of European war has been removed for the immediate future and that business in this country will now improve.

A six-weeks walkout at the McCord Radiator plants at Wyandotte and Detroit ended yesterday when a truce agreement negotiated Saturday was approved.

Philip Morris, Ltd., declared a dividend of one-half share of common stock for each share held and a cash dividend of 75 cents on common in addition to regular preferred dividend of $1.25.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—A temporary buying flurry lifted stocks abruptly today as reports the Czech government had accepted the British-French proposals for dismemberment of Czechoslovakia—but the market as quickly resumed a quiet drift to await official confirmation.

News from Europe continued to exercise the dominant force over speculation in security and commodity markets.

Near the final hour, gains of fractions to around a point ruled in most shares after numerous issues had risen during the forenoon buying spurt to new peaks for this week's recovery move.

Transactions ran at the rate of about 1,000,000 shares for the full session.

Foreign dollar bonds, except for a break in Czech issues, looked up with stocks. Some commodities also stiffened but wheat retreated further.

Holding part of the gains were U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Chrysler, Boeing, Philip Morris, Union Carbide, Great Northern Preferred, New York Central, Loews, Public Service of New Jersey and American Smelting.

Westinghouse, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey and American Radiator were among issues which quickly reverted to slightly lower levels.

On the curb, minor gains remained in Electric Bond & Share, Babcock & Wilcox and Newmont while American Cyanamid B and American Gas & Electric showed small losses.

Local Death Record

John King, formerly of Rosendale, died today at his home in Alsea. He was the husband of Margaret Abernathy King, formerly of Kingston. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

The funeral of Mary Elizabeth Terpening, wife of J. Elbert Terpening, took place this afternoon at her home with the Rev. George Berens, pastor of the Port Ewen Reformed Church, conducting the service. The service was simple and very effective and the pastor spoke of the long illness and her courage and Christian fortitude in time of trouble. The casket was covered with flowers and many large designs were heaped about the casket. The bearers were William Van Derveer, Samuel Tinsie, Charles Van Orden, Charles Neese, Harry Hummel and Vernon Smith. Burial was in the family plot in the Port Ewen Cemetery.

Charles Burzee of 50 Bruya avenue died Tuesday afternoon at his home. Surviving are his wife, Harriet Burzee; one daughter, Mrs. Gus Bunse; one grandson, all of Kingston; two brothers, Andrew Burzee of Highland and Arthur Burzee of Rosendale; one sister, Mrs. Ethel Hart, of Rosendale. He was a member of Clifton Avenue M. E. Church and was employed by the K. and M. silk mill for a period of 17 years. The body may be viewed any time at the W. N. Conner Funeral Home, 296 Fair street. Funeral services will be held from the W. N. Conner Funeral Home on Friday at 2 p. m. Burial in Montrose Cemetery.

Stephen L. Johnston of New Paltz and Fort Lauderdale, Fla., died in the south Tuesday of a heart attack. Not alone was he popular in the life of the Ulster county village while at home, but also among the many Ulsterites who winter in the south. He had been one of them for 25 years.

Mr. Johnston was born in New Paltz, December 13, 1875, the son of Isabella Ackert Johnston and the late George E. Johnston. He received his early education in the old district school, and the Normal Academy, after which he was graduated at Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie. His first business experience was in his father's drug store. Then he purchased the village electric light plant operating it for 25 years, until 1924 when he sold it to the Central Hudson. He also was a co-partner with his father in the garage business. In 1920 he married Mary DuBois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman DuBois, besides his wife and mother are two children, Betty and George S. Johnston; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Bogart, Mrs. Cora J. Laurence; one brother, Charles A. Johnston; two nephews, George S. Bogart and Jay G. Laurence; one niece, Helen Bogart all of New Paltz. His funeral will be held Friday at 2 p. m. from the parlors of V. T. Pine and Son, New Paltz. The Rev. G. Willecheger, pastor of the Reformed Church, will officiate. Burial will be in New Paltz Rural cemetery.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 21, 1938.

GAINING ON DEATH

During the first six months of this year, 3,670 automobile deaths were prevented in this country. That is based on a comparison of motor vehicle deaths in the first half of 1938 as against the same period in 1937. The decline in fatalities that began last November carried through encouragingly into July.

So far so good. But, as the National Safety Council points out, "This is no time to quit in our fight for safety. This is just the beginning." We've won a partial victory. Unremitting effort on the part of every motorist, pedestrian, traffic judge and law enforcement officer is needed if the victory is to be ultimately complete.

Some of the most dangerous driving months lie ahead. Traffic during September is always heavy. And with the coming of the rains, snow and ice, plus the shorter daylight hours of fall and winter, motoring presents new and difficult hazards. There will be no time for standing still and praising past achievements in safety, until December 31 has passed, and the figures are all in.

A saving of 3,670 lives is a magnificent thing. And it shows that traffic accidents, the pessimists to the contrary, can be sharply reduced. During the first half of this year, there was more and better organized community and state safety work than ever before. We have gradually learned that sporadic safety campaigns solve no problem, and that permanence and continuity of effort are vital. We are learning what courteous, "flexible" law enforcement can do. And we are also learning the excellent results that follow better traffic engineering and scientific traffic control.

You're one of the soldiers in this fight against death. The country needs your help. Keep up the good work—and make it still better.

SIX MILES A MINUTE

Those two British daredevils who are fighting it out on the Utah salt flats with their freak racing automobiles got the record up to six miles a minute on September 16. Covering the measured mile at that incredible rate, Capt. Eyston recaptured the title he had lost the day before to John Cobb.

The speed duel began on August 27. On that date Eyston broke the record he himself had established the year before. The increase was 37.29 miles an hour. Then Cobb got busy, pushing the speed up again, achieving a rate of 350.2 miles per hour. Eyston wiped out that mark with his six miles a minute.

There will not be many more chances for these rivals to shatter each other's records this year. Autumn rains spoil the salt flats for this sort of motoring. There will doubtless be other attempts next year, with the same men or new contenders, with new and more fantastic speed machines.

What's it all about and where does it get them? It's a thrill for drivers and spectators and a triumph for the designers and manufacturers of the cars with their amazing engines, tires and other special equipment. But like Alice and the Red Queen they go awfully fast without getting anywhere.

IDLE MONEY

Apparently the interest rate on public loans reached the lowest point in American history with the recent government financing by Secretary Morgenthau. The rate on $1,300,000,000 of discounted bills is said to figure out at one-twentieth of 1 per cent. That is less than one one-hundredth of the rate private citizens usually have to pay for their loans. It seems a pity that the rest of us can't get such favorable terms.

There are reasons, of course, for the incredibly low rate enjoyed by the government. The chief reason is that banks and lending agencies in general are bulging with idle money, or with idle credit which they can use for money, and they want to keep it employed even if it isn't paying for its keep. All the more wonder then, that productive uses are not found for billions of such funds.

"There is no demand for it," lenders say.

But wouldn't there be a demand if rates were lowered, as the prices of excess goods are lowered to stimulate buying? People don't keep billions of dollars' worth of merchandise in idle storage.

They fear, no doubt, to "crack" established interest rates. But more than interest rates may crack, if they are held up too long and arbitrarily.

SENIORITY

One of the signs of the times is the strengthening of the "seniority" rule, by which the older employees in a store or factory or office are favored against the younger, for promotion or retention or rehiring. It is a natural procedure, implying that a person has a sort of priority right to his job, and the longer he has had it, the stronger the right.

Some people, however, are questioning the principle, and especially the increasingly drastic application of it. If extensive unemployment is to continue, they say, and there are large groups right along lacking jobs in every occupation, how are millions of unemployed ever going to get work, and how are the young people continually coming along going to find their places in the economic system?

Seniority, observes a thoughtful writer on this subject, increases the security of the older workers at the expense of the younger workers, and also "at the expense of maximum efficiency everywhere." The natural effect is lower production than our society is capable of, with resulting higher production costs and prices.

The principle, presumably, will not be changed, but many people think there should be more flexibility in it.

Loud auto horns cause more accidents than they avoid, says Mayor LaGuardia of New York. There's no sense in using 'em to scare people. We might have a phonograph horn saying softly, "Please look out!"

Field Marshal Goering says the Third Reich "can stand a blockade for 30 years." At the end of that time the archeologists would be looking for it.

Those Czechs don't take any bogus checks from Hitler.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.
 BIRTHMARKS

When it was learned that one of the Dionea quadruplets had a growth on her leg consisting of a mass of twisted blood vessels, a great many were naturally interested as to whether or not the growth could be safely removed. Its removal by the Drs. Kelly of Baltimore, by the use of radium, was quite successful.

These red or bluish lumps of bloodvessels, so often on the face, are always a source of distress and worry to mothers as the fear of an unsightly scar makes them hesitate about its removal, aside from the expense. Yet as they think further of when the child grows up with this blemish (if it were not removed) they are even more worried. The decision has to be made.

Dr. Henry W. Kaessler, Bronxville-Mount Vernon, N. Y., in discussing the vascular or blood birthmarks in the Journal of The American Medical Association says:

The common methods of treatment of these blood tumors are not practical for ordinary use. Electrical desiccation (drying up), freezing with carbon dioxide snow, cauterizing with heat or with phenol or nitric acid, or cutting out by surgery are all serious or drastic methods, producing sloughing, and often lumpy scar formation. Radium treatment is costly.

A simple method of treatment, available to the average physician is described by Dr. Kaessler. Twenty per cent quinine dihydrochloride and urethane diluted with an equal part of 2 per cent procaine hydrochloride, with epinephrine—adrenalin—was found painless and most effective. Forty-four hemangiomas (blood tumors) were injected with excellent results in children from two weeks to 3 years of age. There was no return of the tumors after two to four and one-half years.

With such relatively safe, simple, effective and inexpensive treatment, these growths should not be allowed to grow to any size. Where deep tissues are involved in the growth, the X-ray is considered most effective.

Unfortunately the ordinary flat red or port wine birthmarks are not helped by this injection method, as these are really made up of extra pigment or coloring matter. While some of these cases are helped by "quartz" water cooled ultra violet irradiation, preparations of coloring substances to cover or conceal the mark is the only recognized method of handling these cases.

Health Books Available

Eight helpful health booklets by Dr. Barton are now available for readers of the Kingston Daily Freeman. They may be obtained by sending ten cents for each one desired to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., mentioning the Kingston Daily Freeman. The booklets are: "Eating Your Way to Health: Why Worry About Your Heart?"; "Neurosis: The Common Cold: Overweight and Underweight: Allergy or Being Sensitive to Various Foods and Other Substances: Scourge (gonorrhea and syphilis); and How Is Your Blood Pressure?"

Chapter 20

A Girl Vanishes

I TOOK another look at the inert body on the floor. Beside it was a woman's handbag, and at sight of it I knew in a flash just what kind of a fool I had been.

I snatched it up and tore it open. There were keys there, as I had known there would be; the big latchkey of the Château la Vague, the Yale of Geiss's front door, and a smaller, queerly shaped bit of metal that I knew without telling would unlock our prison door and set us free.

I whooped with joy like a schoolboy and raced down the room to the farther door.

"Come on, Otilie!" I yelled, and as she came I fitted the key into the little hole and heard the welcome sound of the wards turning.

One minute later we were dragging open the garden gate, staring into an outer world that we had hardly dared hope to see again.

The sun was high in the heavens. I rubbed my knuckles across my heavy lids, and as I did so, heard a familiar voice. "May I ask," said Hugo dryly, "if this has been an all-night party? Or were you merely sleeping off the effects?"

The girl had been clinging, half-dazed, to my arm, but at the sound of his voice she wrenched herself free and, running to him, flung herself on his breast, twining her arms round his neck.

"It's you!" she sobbed. "I knew you'd come, but oh, I've been so frightened! Hugo, I was so terribly frightened!"

He put his arms about her, awkwardly, like a man who is half-afraid, and then suddenly strained her to him and pressed his lips to her hair.

"Dearest," he said, very low. "Dearest, you're safe now. You're with me."

I stood there with my hands in my pockets, feeling slightly resentful, for when all was said and done, it was I that had done the dirty work, and he was getting the thanks. But after a minute he raised his head and grinned at me in a shamefaced way.

"Sorry, old man!" he said. "Unaccustomed as I am to public love-making, I forgot all about you for the moment!"

"Don't mind me!" I retorted bitterly. "Carry on as long as you like, but when you're through, it might be as well to get Otilie back to the hotel. Dunning must be throwing hysterics by now."

He looked suddenly conscience-stricken. "You're absolutely right!" he declared. "Actually, it's past eight already. Otilie, my dear, what'll we go to get a move on, but first tell me how you got out."

"Well, you've been down to the hotel, haven't you? If I hadn't run into Fleuriot and heard that the last he'd seen of Archie was when he turned in a purposeful way up this street, I might have been searching for you till Doomsday. As it was, I was just pondering the best way of breaking into the villa."

"Fleuriot?" I echoed, startled. "What had he been up to, I wonder?"

"I don't know," said he, "but his car was inches thick with dust, and he looked as if he hadn't slept for a week. He asked me to tell you, though, that he would be calling your bluff shortly, whatever that may mean."

"Well," I said, "I'm ready when he is—but taking it by and large, we've certainly had a full night. Otilie and I. We both had the same idea of breaking into Geiss's villa, and we met on his balcony. Following that, we witnessed Geiss murdering Henrietta Adams, and we've been locked in with her corpse for the rest of the night, but we did, at least, locate the missing gun."

"I Love You A Lot"

THE Carlton terrace was empty when we arrived. As we halted just inside the door, Hugo turned to the girl and gently unlatched her arm.

"Sweet," he said, "we're too dirty and disheveled to go through another day without cleaning up, but there's obviously nothing wrong so far, or Dunning would be in evidence. Will you let him know you're safe, and tell him we'll be back as soon as we've had a bath and shave? After that I want you to promise not to stir from your room until I give you leave."

"Hugo!" I said, as for a moment I saw a faint refusal trembling on her lips; then slowly her expression softened, and a second time she reached up and kissed him softly. "You're a medieval relic, my precious," she murmured, "but you're terribly sweet, and I love you quite a lot."

"Hugo!" I said, as we turned down the ramp to the deserted Croisette, "are you going to marry that girl?"

"If she'll have me," he answered self-consciously.

"She'll have you all right," I retorted, and added gloomily, "in more ways than you think!"

He looked at me, startled and resentful, but made no protest, though his tone, when he spoke, was a trifle frigid.

"I suppose," he suggested, "that the next thing is to notify the police about that woman's murder?"

"Well," I said cautiously, "it depends what portion of the police you're referring to. If we report to the 'big' inspectors, he'll be obliged to hold his inquiry right away; if we tell the commissaire, he'll want to know how we broke into the villa, and may feel bound to arrest us for breaking and entering."

"Fleuriot, then?" he suggested.

"Fleuriot or no one," I agreed.

The reception clerk at his hotel informed us that Fleuriot had not been in all night. "It is possible of course," he added, "that the gentleman has gone to view the configuration!"

"What configuration?" I echoed stupidly, for the seemingly chronic condition of the Eurasian beggar for the moment slipped my memory.

He raised a shocked eyebrow. "The cape!" he explained. "It is possible that Monsieur has not observed? Villages are threatened, boats are standing by to take off the inhabitants of the coast towns, and troops have been rushed from Nice and even from Marseille to fight the flames. It is a most interesting spectacle," he added complacently, "but a pity that it should chance to coincide with the bradevie. It will be difficult for our visitors to witness both."

Back at Hugo's I had almost forgotten the fire, when I saw a sight that halted me, gasping, in my track. The cape itself was invisible, covered with a great pall of brown smoke that stretched half across the sky, but every other second a shower of fiery sparks would shoot upward, followed by a searing tongue of flame.

An hour later we took the road again, and during that time the whole town seemed to have wakened to excited life. The main road was crisscrossed with jostling motorcars, carrying sightseers to the scene of the fire, and through them, demanding right of way with shrieking horns, tore great lorries loaded with troops, shirt-sleeved and steel-helmeted, armed with pick and shovel to fight the flames.

"Where is she?"

AS we wormed and twisted our way towards the Croisette, signs of the civil festivities began to emerge. Flags and bunting fluttered gaily on all sides and when we came to the main street, it was to find it closed to traffic by a white-painted barrier.

Every shop had its stall outside, piled with a strange jumble of merchandise. The street was a cauldron of people, and as the wine-shops were closed, a brisk trade, I imagined it wouldn't be long before the fun became fast and furious; but the Croisette was still folded in an aristocratic emptiness, and when we entered the Carlton lounge, it was to find Dunning in solitary possession.

"He was a ragged, scruffy, and unshaven, and I felt a momentary pang of compunction that we had dalled so long before joining him; but after all, I reflected, he had known for some considerable time that the girl was safe, and could have made his own toilet, too, if he had wished. Even as he thought came his head, though his greeting dispelled it."

"Where is she?" he demanded sharply. "Holy smoke! I made sure you'd bring her along with you!"

I gasped. "What the devil do you mean?" I demanded blankly. "We left her here a couple of hours back and she went to get you know she was safe and well!"

"She let me know all right," the big man answered bleakly. "Sent me a note saying she was all right and would see me and tell me all the news as soon as she'd cleaned up. But no word came, and when I went to see her, I found she'd left her room to her room; all that greeted me was a Cassandra Chubb, running around like a demented thing. The only consolation I had was that Cassandra'd had sense enough not to alarm the old man."

He broke off and wiped his wet forehead. "Gentlemen," he said solemnly, "Otilie Will wrote me that letter, saying she was in the vestibule, and stepped into the elevator to go to her own room, and she never got there, and from that moment to this, there's not a soul in the hotel that's seen her again. I've asked 'em all; hall-porter, who saw her come in with you; reception clerk, who gave her paper to read; but no elevator boy who saw her get out of her own floor; and not one has set eyes on her since. She didn't come down again, either by the elevator or the stairs, and short of having a room-to-room search of the two hundred and fifty apartments in this hotel, I'm at my wit's end. All I could do was to let her have the key to the vestibule, and stepped into the elevator to go to her own room, and she never got there, and from that moment to this, there's not a soul in the hotel that's seen her again. ## Drenching Rains Cause Heavy New England Damage

(By The Associated Press)

Drenching rains which have fallen with more or less regularity for a week lashed the Atlantic seaboard again today, centering their most destructive force in the New England States where damage already runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Turbid Massachusetts rivers neared 1936 flood levels. Half a dozen bridges had been carried away and industrial plants in Gardner, Athol and Southbridge, flooded by rising waters, were shut down.

Train Kills Man In West Shore R.R. Tunnel Yesterday

Victim, Unknown, Found
 Soon After 3 o'clock by Trackman; Man Carried
 No Identification

An unknown man, aged about 45 years and apparently a tramp, was killed by Passenger Train No. 7 Tuesday afternoon in the railroad tunnel of the West Shore Railroad. The body was not found until over an hour later by George W. Uhl, of 20 Ravine street, employed as a trackwalker on the railroad.

It was shortly after 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon that police headquarters received word of a man being killed in the tunnel, and Officers Rosdell and Cramer in one of the police radio cars drove to the scene to make an investigation.

They describe the dead man as being about 45 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighing 145 pounds, with brown hair, and partly bald. The man wore a dark suit, blue shirt, brown sweater, black shoes and socks and a gray cap.

No Papers

There were no papers of any description in the pockets that would lead to the man's identification. Colonel Michael Gallotta of Glasco, who had been called, took charge of the body.

The passenger train was in charge of Conductor W. Stevens of Albany and Engineer B. Gross of Weehawken. The train did not stop after passing through the tunnel as the train crew were unaware of hitting anyone, and did not learn of the tragedy until after the body had been discovered by the trackwalker.

Mr. Uhl in the course of his duties of inspecting the tracks had walked through the railroad tunnel between 12:30 and 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and at that time had met no one in the tunnel.

From what the police ascertained the only traffic through the tunnel after that was the passenger train which was due at the Kingston station at 1:40 o'clock. The man's head had been badly crushed and he was injured about the body. He apparently had been instantly killed when struck. It is thought that he might have been sitting on the railroad tracks when hit. Near the body was found a bottle of day rum.

The railroad tunnel is double-tracked and there is plenty of room for those using the tunnel to walk through to step to one side to avoid being struck by a passing train.

The body was found about 100 feet inside the tunnel from the Abel street side.

The tunnel is located a short distance from the West Shore railroad bridge over the Rondout creek.

To Speak on Orient

A report on evangelistic progress in the Orient will be given by the Rev. and Mrs. Duryea of the Oriental Missionary Society at the Atwood Chapel services tomorrow evening. Services will also be held Friday evening. Both will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

To Hold Party

A card party will be held Tuesday evening, September 27, at the Polish-American Citizens' Club Hall at 460 Delaware avenue at 8:30 p. m. It was announced today.

A dam and two bridges at Baldwinville, near Gardner, which had withstood the 1936 flood, were carried away, and the Boston and Maine railroad reported five washouts, the worst at Winchendon, Mass., where an engine and two cars were derailed.

Many bridges, dams and state highways were washed out since Saturday was more than twice the normal precipitation for the entire month. The Connecticut river at Hartford was more than two feet above the flood stage of sixteen and a half feet, and at Stamford Springs residents of the town waited disconsolately the sounding of the fire signal as a warning to desert their homes if the big dam breaks.

Glastonbury, Conn., was without drinking water. The damage to state highways was estimated officially at $75,000. Crop damages were heavy.

And still there was little hope for a break in the weather.

New York city's weather bureau said five inches of rain had fallen in the metropolis since Saturday. Philadelphia received an even greater dose with 11 consecutive days of rain, an official measure of 5.68 inches, most of it in the last three days. Neither New York nor Philadelphia, however, reported any serious damage.

New Jersey also was drenched, and at Atlantic City small vessels were advised to stay in port for at least another 24 or 36 hours.

Meanwhile the tropical hurricane which had threatened the east coast of Florida, swirled northward in the Atlantic, holding a menace to shipping north of Wilmington, N. C.

Meteorologists thought it likely the hurricane would not touch the coast but would be close enough to cause dangerous gales and high tides.

The southwest also had a taste of stormy weather. Presidio, Tex., a border town, reported the lowlands of the Rio Grande flooded as cloudbursts hit its tributary, the Rio Conchos in Mexico.

Excursion to New York Oct. 5

An excursion to New York city will be held Wednesday, October 5, on the steamer Alexander Hamilton. The steamer will leave this city at 7:30 o'clock that morning. Cordis Hose Company is sponsoring a trip for its members and friends. The public is cordially invited to enjoy the excursion.

Arriving at West 125th street the steamer will be met by double-deck buses of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company and the excursionists will be taken for a 40-mile tour of the World Fair grounds via the famous Tri-Borough Bridge.

The steamer Hamilton will leave the West 42nd street pier at 4:30 o'clock that afternoon for the return trip, arriving here at 9:50.

The annual turkey dinner will be served by the ladies of First Baptist Church Wednesday evening, October 12, from 5 o'clock until all are served.

Man Drops Dead Of Heart Attack

William Remon, a negro, dropped dead in the kitchen of his home, 373 North street, about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Dr.

John B. Krom, who had been called, stated that death was due to heart attack. The death was investigated by Officers Rosdell and Cramer.

From the story as learned by the police Remon was standing near the stove in the kitchen when he suddenly dropped to the floor dead.

Get Your Party Off To a Rollicking Start

A B C Scavenger Hunt a'Wow! Fun! Hilarity! Everybody "rarin' to go!" That's the time to start a rip-roaring Alphabet Scavenger Hunt!

Divide the crowd into four-teams or larger groups. Let one "scavenger" for each group draw a letter of the alphabet from a box. Don't use Q, U, X, Y or Z. Then say to various groups: "You've got 15 minutes to bring in as many objects as possible beginning with your letter."

Give the signal and away they go pell-mell! The B group, for example, will soon be scurrying in with an old combination of B's balloons, brooms, bottles bananas, biscuits, baskets.

Have an amusing prize for the group bringing in the biggest collection.

Next, spring some novel stunts like Hands from China, Rapid Rhymes or Scrambled Eggs. You'll find these and lots of other jolly games and stunts in our new 32-page booklet, PARTY GAMES FOR ALL OCCASIONS. Make your party a humdinger with fortunetelling games, Table and Circle games. Games bubbling with action.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of PARTY GAMES FOR ALL OCCASIONS to The Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Y.M.C.A. to Begin Busy Schedule

Busy days are in store at the Y. M. C. A., Kingston, for the board of directors, committees, members and friends with several outstanding events scheduled during the next few weeks, it was announced today.

At the Y. M. C. A. Camp at Glenrie, Sunday at 2:30 p. m. the third annual setting-up conference of the committees, clubs and officials will discuss and plan the year's program features. The ladies auxiliary will serve a buffet supper immediately following the sessions. President Clarence Dumm, who will preside at these conferences and has urged each representative to make an extra effort to attend.

Due to extreme pressure of duties Eugene Field Scott was unable to accept the invitation of the board of directors to speak at the second grand fall opening dinner Monday, October 2. However, the committee has secured the services of Abel Gregg, secretary for the opening dinner.

Mr. Gregg comes with a message which will show the importance of developing leadership in the United States. More details will appear at a later date.

Chairman E. J. Trowbridge of the Y. M. C. A. membership committee has set the week of October 2 as Membership Enrollment week. At the setting-up conference the plans will be discussed for securing new members and bringing back to the association renewals those who have let their memberships lapse. The board of directors and committees also will work out plans for the Saturday night guests nights for the industrial, mercantile utilities and service plants in and about Kingston.

Schedules will be arranged with the officials and the Y. M. C. A. so that they may have their opportunities to enjoy the Y. M. C. A. programs.

"Red" Dawson's Question Box

By LOWELL (RED) DAWSON

QUESTION: Fundamentally, what are the principal things an offense should have to be successful?

ANSWER: There are at least eight cardinal fundamentals for an offense. Speed in striking quickly; holes open and close quickly; a running play for every lane; deception; plays that relate in appearance; passer where he can be protected and get pass off quickly; a formation permitting at least three men to get deep on passes or else four receivers; passes must complement running game; and blocking.

Prep School Star Plays Saturday

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP)—Bill DeCorrevont, the nation's most highly publicized 1937 prep football player, will gallop again Saturday—on a college gridiron.

While Iowa headed for inter-sectional game at Los Angeles and Minnesota girded itself for the far western Washington's huskies at Minneapolis, Bill Ten football interest around Chicago centered on "The Kid" and Northwestern's coming freshman varsity game.

In it DeCorrevont will make his collegiate debut as the freshman's left halfback.

He wound up the 1937 season at Chicago's Austin High School with 30 touchdowns, nine in one game and most of them on long dashes. He scored 211 points and made at least one touchdown in each of 10 games. As a shale he led Austin to a city championship—and a crowd of approximately 115,000 paid its way into Soldier Field to see it happen.

So college coaches all over the nation held their breath as he prepared to make his college choice. When he did, it was Northwestern "because I want to be near home."

Other matches will bring together Dom Perotti, Diamond Belt champ, from Amsterdam and Ray Robinson, New York bantamweight star; Moogy Marchese, Schenectady heavyweight, and Erwin Carroll of New York; Carmine Patta, Newburgh conqueror of Steve Kukul, national lightweight champ vs. Mike Angleri, the New Yorker who made it interesting for Vince Semperino last week; and Semperino, Schenectady slugger vs. Tony Domblanc, Bronx welterweight slugger.

Indications are that there will be a capacity crowd to see the bouts, all of which promise plenty of fireworks.

CAPTAIN OF GIANTS

The start of the fourteenth season for the New York Football Giants in the Polo Grounds on Sunday, October 16, when the Giants meet the Philadelphia Eagles also marks the eighth anniversary for the greatest center of modern football—Mel Hein, captain of the Giants and in the past seven seasons he has never failed to make the all-league team.

Bike Leaders
New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—Eleven remaining teams today welcomed the arrival of the second-half of their six-day grind of bike pedaling at Madison Square Garden in the 64th International race. Tied for first berth honors were Debacco and Saavedra and Le-tourner and Guimbretiere.

Chilly Golfer
Mrs. Estelle Lawton-Page of Chapel Hill, N. C., encountered cold weather in the national women's golf meet at Chicago, but the defending champion shot a hot 80 to tie for medalist hostess.

St. Paul Scores
St. Paul, Sept. 21 (AP)—St. Paul's American Association champions returned home today still in the running for the Shaughnessy playoff championship and a chance at "little world series" honors.

The Saints stopped the rush of the Milwaukee Brewers and their ace pitcher, Whitlow Wyatt, last night by winning, 5 to 4. It was St. Paul's second triumph.

The clubs meet again tonight. Kansas City already has disposed of Indianapolis in the other semi-final.

Bears and Red Wings in Series Playoffs Tonight
Newark, N. J., Sept. 21 (AP)—Unless it rains, the Newark Bears will attempt tonight to draw even in their semi-final playoff series with the Rochester Red Wings for the International Baseball League governor's cup.

Rochester still needs one victory to eliminate the league champions and then face Buffalo in another four-out-of-seven series for the right to meet the winner of the American Association playoffs in the "Little World Series."

Joe Beggs turned back the Red Wings, 3-0, last night to keep Newark in the running and bring the playoff status to three-to-two.

Giants' Grid Slate
The home schedule of the New York football Giants is as follows, all being Sunday games, except on November 24, Thanksgiving: October 16, Philadelphia Eagles; October 23, Brooklyn Dodgers; October 30, Pittsburgh Pirates; November 6, Chicago Cardinals; November 12, Cleveland Rams; November 20, Green Bay Packers; November 24, Brooklyn at Ebbets Field; December 4, Washington Redskins.

Rainfall Causes Two County Slides

Continuous rains have caused at least two slides which have partially closed two county highways. In the Sundown valley in Denning a clay bank became saturated with water and slid down for a distance of about 40 feet, partially covering the highway. While traffic was still passing this morning it was anticipated that further slides might close the road later in the day.

Inquiry at the office of the County Highway Department brought forth information that the slide would have to be cleared and a cribbing built to protect the slope from further slides. County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran reported that there had also been a slide on the River road in the town of Esopus where an old retaining wall had been pushed out by the pressure of a rain soaked bank. This road too was partially blocked. A crew was sent to the scene to open the road.

At Napanoch it was reported this morning by one traveler that the Rondout creek was "two feet from the bridge," but inquiry at Napanoch brought forth the information that this was exaggerated and that while the Rondout was high the water was several feet from the bridge on the Kingston-Elizaville road.

At Accord where Mombaccus creek frequently gives trouble and floods the main highway by backing up from the Rondout creek, traffic was not being stopped this morning.

The only road which was flooded was the Tilton-New Falls road at Springtown where the Walkkill flooded the highway Tuesday evening and the County Highway Department was compelled to place warning lights and fares. Today the road was still flooded. The water covered the road at the usual place where the banks of the Walkkill are but a few feet from the highway.

Although no water was flowing over the Ashokan spillway the lower Esopus creek was high and there was a considerable amount of water flowing over the Glenclerie falls.

Volunteers Pass Mutual Aid Plan

Saranac Lake had done so, and probably regretted the error for the delegates made 10 times the noise they had been making before they had received the mayor's warning. He said that the convention was a fight from start to finish. Everyone attending, he said, seemed to have a chip on his shoulder.

One of the convention nights after the mayor had issued the quiet order delegates from Long Island obtained a casket and labeling it with the mayor's name bore it through the streets.

"They not only buried the mayor but they buried him in effigy," remarked Judge McKenzie.

Judge McKenzie suggested that the county firemen visit the Firemen's Home in Hudson some day during October, but his suggestion was not adopted and instead the secretary was instructed to write the secretary of the home to learn what day would be an open one, since the county firemen would like to have a visiting day to themselves.

Culliton Speaks

The speaker of the evening was Judge Bernard A. Culliton, chairman of the law committee of the association, who spoke of the excellent work accomplished by the volunteer firemen in fighting fires.

Magic and Dance

Fred L. Van Deusen, well known local magician, gave a fine exhibition of magic, and Frank Oulton and his children, Eileen, Mary and Buddy, gave an excellent exhibition of dancing.

Following the entertainment a dinner was served the delegates by the Hasbrouck Engine Co.

Day Jailor Brown on Duty

A strain, the result of a slip while hauling Dan Collins up the bank at Rosendale Wednesday of last week, in the course of an investigation of the entry of several places in that village, complicated with a cold picked up the next day, proved too much for Deputy Sheriff Arthur H. Brown. He returned to his duties as assistant day jailor at the court house this morning, after being ill at his home for several days.

Our Growing Population

The following births have been reported to the Board of Health: Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Temple of Cottekill, a son, Bruce Kenneth, in Benedictine Hospital; Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hull of RFD 3, Saugerties, a daughter, Beverly Joan, in Benedictine Hospital.

Cordts Meeting Thursday

Cordts House will hold a special meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. in the engine house. As special business of importance will be transacted, a full attendance of members is requested.

Discredits Charges

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins has notified the Senate campaign expenditures committee he found no substantiation of charges that WPA officials generally tried to coerce relief workers into supporting Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) for re-election.

To Enforce Law

State police attached to Troop C at Sidney have been instructed by Capt. Daniel E. Fox to enforce the State Motor Vehicle laws requiring cars to make a full stop before passing a school bus.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Mowle and daughter, Betty, called on friends at Accord.

The school tax list for Creek Locks school District No. 3 is out for collecting September 23 to October 25.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig from Connecticut visited the home of her brother, Isaac Duval.

Mrs. C. Leim, who has been visiting her folks the past three months in Detroit, Mich., has returned to her Creek Locks home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacquin and W. Devo motored to Accord, Springtown and also Williams Lake recently.

Miss Snyder went to Kingston Monday on business.

Dancer Arrested

Los Angeles, Sept. 21 (AP)—Bill Robinson, 50, stage and movie tap dancer, was released on his own recognizance tonight after he had been arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Detective Lieut. Rex Huston said Robinson drew a pistol, for which he carried a permit, and struck Paul Moffat, University of Southern California football player, after their cars collided. Five stitches were required to close Moffat's wound.

Lots of Turkey Promised

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—A promise of plenty of turkeys for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners came today from the department of agriculture. Experts said that the 1938 turkey crop was about 3.7 per cent larger than last year.

No-Jury Exhibit Attracts New Talent at Woodstock

Legion Turning To Business Today

Los Angeles, Sept. 21 (AP)—A march-weary gathering of delegates to the National Convention of the American Legion turned today to hear reports of the progress of its nation-wide policies and to make whatever changes in them it deems necessary.

After a day's "respite" from business sessions, during which the rank and file of the Legion unfolded the most colorful and longest parade in this city's history, the official delegates were called into an all-day business session.

Appearing before the gathering today were National Commander Daniel J. Doherty; Past National Commander James A. Drain; Major General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veteran's affairs; and Reuben T. Shaw, president of the National Educational Association.

Hines told the convention that adequate preparedness for war was the best insurance against being provoked into war.

"By insisting upon proper defense measures and true Americanism, you of the American Legion are promoting the cause of American peace," he said.

Hines lauded the Legion for its insistence upon strong national defense, "of the type which President Roosevelt and the Congress have been preparing for our protection."

Election of Stephen F. Chaulwick of Seattle, Wash., as National Commander is generally conceded among Legion leaders.

It will be Hollywood's night at the convention this evening in Memorial Coliseum. There will be a "parade of stars," in which more than 100 film, stage and radio personalities will take part.

The Auxiliaries also will name its candidates for national offices in today's all-day business session.

Woodstock, Sept. 21—The last show of the season of the gallery of the Woodstock Artists Association opened over the weekend as the non-jury exhibition which is held each year. The show is a small one, as the end of the season has sent many of the artists away from their summer homes here.

Water colors, oils and drawings are hung to good advantage in the main room. On the east wall hangs a mural, the only one to be shown this season, chiefly by George Franklin, but also worked on by the other members of the committee who arranged the show, John Nichols, Gustave Schrader and Emmett Edwards. As has been the case in most of this summer's shows there is work by several newcomers to the Woodstock exhibitions, among them Jeannie Crow, Sybil Dederick and Dorothy Feldshuh.

The complete catalogue is as follows: Clarence Bolton, "Life"; Tode Brower, "Shore and Palm"; "Fisherman"; Jo Cantine, "Road Through Cocksouth"; Anna Carolan, "Still Life"; Florence Cramer, "Helen"; Jeannie Crow, "First Snowfall"; "Sea Gull"; "Along the Sawkill"; "Methodist Church"; "Landscape"; "Flowers"; Sybil Dederick, "Blue Garden"; "Man Sitting"; Eleanor Edwards, "Farm"; Emmett Edwards, "Trees and Rocks"; Helen Feldshuh, "Kingston Point"; Karl E. Fortess, "Landscape"; Boyer Gonzales, "Jones Avenue"; Vivien Jacobsen, seven drawings; Jane Jones, "Landscape"; "Jean"; Wendell Jones, "Celery Gardens"; Jane Kennedy, "Cosmos"; Hermine Kleinert, "Spring Mists"; Julia S. Leaycraft, "Dance of Sira"; Eugene Ludins, "The Searching Party"; "Landscape"; John McCellan, "Imprisoned People"; Eugene McEvoy, "Landscape"; Henry Meloy, "Lois"; John Nichols, "Dog Fight"; "Rat Boilers"; Joseph Pollet, "Wittenberg Venus"; Walter Sarff, "Flowers on Tea Chest"; Gustave Schrader, "Good Housekeeping"; "Deserted House"; "Eva"; Ruth Schrader, "Peasant"; "Portrait"; "Sonny"; Helen Harvey Shotwell, "Still Life"; "The Green Jacket"; Ruth Singer, "Tank"; "Florida Cracker"; J. Hartley Tanner, "Twilight"; "Indian Life"; "The First Ship"; Marko Vucovic, "Still Life"; Reginald Wilson, "Loading Hay"; Martine Cantine, "Nude."

Legion Humor

This was the Santa Maria, Calif., American Legion post's idea of something pretty funny in the parade of the Forty and Eight, legion fun organization, held at Los Angeles as part of the organization's annual convention.

Lloyd Holdup Details Cleared

Details of a holdup the night of July 13 in the town of Lloyd appear to have been cleared up with the arrest in Brooklyn yesterday of Anthony Borchetti, 34, of 1517 West 9th street, Brooklyn, on a charge of robbery in the first degree. Borchetti was brought to Highland by Trooper Reynolds, of the B. C. I., and Deputy Sheriff Vredenburg, and was arraigned before Justice Walter R. Seidman who committed him to the Ulster county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Borchetti is charged with being implicated in the robbery on the night of July 13 of Charles Fields, proprietor of a general store and tavern in Ohioville. According to Sergeant Hulse of Highland Borchetti confessed to his part in the holdup and also admitted that two friends, Joseph Mulabone and Rocky Lisco, Brooklyn youths, had taken part in the affair.

Borchetti's story, as told to Sergeant Hulse, is to the effect that on the night in question Fields came to the Wagon Wheel, a resort on Route 299, about three miles from Highland, where Borchetti had been engaged as a bartender. Later in the evening, he told the troopers, he drove Fields to Highland, Mulabone and Lisco accompanying them. They came back to the Wagon Wheel and when Fields left for his home in Ohioville they insisted on accompanying him, Borchetti driving and his two friends in the rear seat. He claims that when they had gone about a mile one of the other men told Fields to "stick 'em up," after which they proceeded to rob him of $10 which he had on his person. They then allowed him to continue on his way home.

The matter was not reported to Sergeant Hulse for two or three days when he and Trooper Baker and later Troopers Metzger and Reynolds carried on an investigation. It was found that Borchetti had left the Wagon Wheel suddenly, but he was finally located in Brooklyn and his arrest on a warrant followed yesterday.

Warrants are also out for the two men who Borchetti claims were implicated with him in the robbery. The two were strangers to the Highland section and it is understood they came up to spend a couple of days and visit their friend.

Ostrander Winner At Dahlia Show

The name of Walter H. Ostrander of Kingston appears several times in the list of prize winners at the 24th annual show of the American Dahlia Society, held at the Concourse Plaza Hotel, the Bronx.

Among classes in which Mr. Ostrander was a winner are: Semi-cactus; three blooms, orange or red; 1st place.

Decorative, informal, three blooms, large, over seven inches, bicolor; second.

Miniature, any type, five blooms, orange or red; first. In the same department, for decorative, formal or informal, five blooms, first.

Mrs. Harry Klotz of 170 O'Neil street, appointed last year as secretary on the committee for awards, acted in official capacity yesterday at the dahlia show.

Among those in attendance from this section were Miss Marie Mann and her brother, James Mann, of Saugerties, enthusiastic dahlia growers.

Our Duty to You

THE JEWELLER makes a unique service to the public by specializing in a knowledge of both intrinsic and sentimental values of fine things.

For this reason we have always been masters of our merchandise. At present we are pursuing the nationally organized study of Gemology—the science of gems and jewelry—just introduced in America.
